

CODEX LEICESTER

Manuscript 69 (dated XV century)

A member of Family 13 (fully collated by R. Swanson, New Testament Greek Manuscripts: Matthew (Pasadena, CA.: William Carey International University Press, 1995).)

The scan of Matthew 19:9 was obtained from Leicester Record Office.

The following is a full size sample of the scribe's writing, showing the marginal correction on the extreme right, which was intended to replace the underlined words. The original writing was done with a reed. The correction was probable written with a metal nib, which came into common use in the early 19th century. It is very likely that this marginal correction was taken from Erasmus's text (or a later version of the Textus Receptus) and inserted into the margin of Codex Leicester (now classified as MS 69, a 15th century manuscript).

This is a greatly enlarged negative view of folio 1 verso.

Dr Leslie McFall

Personal web-page: www.btinternet.com/~lmf12